

MLA STYLE FOR CITING PRINT SOURCES: A BRIEF GUIDE

The MLA Handbook for Writers of Research Papers, 7th edition, 2009, is the standard guide for college students to the documentation style of the Modern Language Association (MLA). The following information is based on the Handbook. Consult the full Handbook (at the reference desk, 808.02 M685 2009) for specific citation types not included here. ALSO: The Online Writing Lab at Purdue University has created a very good online guide (with many examples) to the MLA style. You can access it at: <http://owl.english.purdue.edu/owl/resource/747/01/>.

Parenthetical Citation in Text

In the text of your paper you must document sources from which you are quoting or paraphrasing using brief parenthetical citations that correspond to your alphabetical list of works cited at the end of the paper. Here is an example:

Ancient writers attributed the invention of the monochord to Pythagoras, who lived in the sixth century BC (Marcuse 197).

The parenthetical citation "(Marcuse 197)" tells the reader that the information in the sentence was derived from page 197 of a work by an author named Marcuse. If the reader wants more information about this source, he/she can turn to the works cited list, where a complete citation for Marcuse's work will be found.

The Works Cited List

The list of works cited appears at the end of the paper. Center the title, Works Cited, an inch from the top of the page. Double-space between the title and the first entry. Begin each entry flush with the left margin; if an entry runs more than one line, indent the subsequent line or lines one-half inch from the left margin.

The examples below are single spaced to save room, but entries on a Works Cited list must be double spaced.

Notes: If there is more than one author, give names in the same order as on the title page. If there are more than three authors, you may name only the first and add et al ("and others"), for example, Edens, Walter, et al.

If citing only one volume of a multivolume work, include only that volume number after the title. If citing more than one volume of a multivolume work, cite the total number of volumes in the work.

Any information present in the following examples, but absent from your source, will be omitted from your citation. For example, if there is neither an editor nor edition, or your source is not a multivolume set, these elements cannot be included.
