Join Glendale Community College faculty members Dennis Doyle, John Queen, and Elizabeth Kronbeck as they lead students across Ireland and England. Classes include European Immigrants in the US (ETHS 111), Contemporary World Problems (POLS 110), and an English Field Studies course (ENG 048). Our travel adventure begins with a week on the storied shores of western Ireland. We'll stay at the National University of Ireland in the coastal town of Galway with side trips to the breathtaking Cliffs of Moher and the Aran Islands. We then spend a week at historic Trinity College in the heart of Dublin giving you plenty of opportunity to explore this bustling city which provides a great contrast of history and contemporary Irish culture. Our next stop is for 2 nights in Belfast, a perfect base to explore the political history of Northern Ireland. We will then depart for 5 nights at Oxford University in England. There will be a free day to enjoy this university town, home to thirty-eight colleges, and sites in the region including Stratford Upon Avon and the villages of the Cotswolds. The program culminates with a visit to Stonehenge and then 3 nights at the University of Westminster in central London, with loads of opportunity for exploring this vibrant city.
