

Student Community Resource Directory

SPRING 2017 EDITION

This directory was created by the students and staff of the Multicultural & Community Engagement Center at Glendale Community College as a resource for faculty and staff.

INTRODUCTION

Recently, it came to our attention that many students on campus were speaking with staff and faculty about problems they were facing with the downturn in the economy. Students were having difficulty with a variety of personal issues and many faculty and staff expressed frustration over not being able to refer students to appropriate services.

Several faculty and staff were aware of various services but there was no method of sharing these resources with others.

In conjunction with student workers at the Multicultural & Community Engagement Center , we began to collect resources with the help of many people and different services on campus. This is by no means an exhaustive list of services. We attempted to include services local to our community (Glendale, Pasadena, Burbank, and nearby Los Angeles).

The information contained in this booklet will be verified for accuracy annually, generally during the summer months. As new community resources are sent to us, we will add them to the booklet and post the most current version online at www.glendale.edu

Comments, suggestions, and corrections can be sent to MCEC@glendale.edu or by calling the Multicultural & Community Engagement Center GCC at 818.240.1000, extension 5580. We hope you find this guide useful.

By using this directory, the user understands and agrees with the following:

- The information contained in this guide is solely for referral purposes;
- Glendale Community College does not guarantee any of the services or endorse any of the programs contained in this guide;
- Every attempt is made to update this booklet throughout the year; however, errors may be found in the guide; and
- Glendale Community College is not responsible for any of the services (or lack of) contained in this guide.
