

ERASURE RESISTANCE: MOVING BLACK WOMEN TO THE CENTER OF MEMORY

Scholar & DJ Lynnée Denise will use elements of DJ culture to excavate and complicate the political lives of twelve black women activists whose cultural contributions exist on the margins of public memory. By centering their stories she intends to unearth the hidden histories of women in the black radical tradition whose legacies get lost in male-centered narratives about social movements.

THURSDAY
MARCH 8, 2018 AT 12:30
STUDENT CENTER 212
FREE LUNCH AT NOON

Flex and CPGU available
Funded by ASCCC and Student Equity

