SEPTEMBER 8, 3-6 PM PT ZOOM

- Would you like to work in an industry where people are passionate about what they do?
- Do you love science but don't want to work in a lab and are looking for a creative and exciting career?
- Do you like trying new foods and flavor combinations?
- Do you love to travel and want to see the world?
- Would you love to have the opportunity to work outside all day when you feel like it?
- Would you like to learn more about other cultures?
- Would you like a career where the jobs pay well right out of school?

Your career in the grape and wine industries could begin with an education at one of the world's leading institutions for developing the next generation of leaders in grape growing and winemaking. UC Davis offers both undergraduate and graduate degrees in Viticulture and Enology. Our graduates are highly sought after for positions throughout California and around the world and hold leadership positions with companies small to large throughout the industry. Join us on Wednesday, September 8, from 3-6 pm PT for a virtual open house to explore how a UC Davis education can open up the possibilities of a career in the grape and wine industries.
