	Potter: Revised SLOs, exit standards, textbooks, integrated DEI where possible,
	Our division met to discuss how to incorporate DEI content into our curriculum, we developed a robust collection of content that will enable us to focus on issues of race and bias. Our curriculum will focus on historical events and facts. We are also developing two courses that will add to our DEI curriculum.
	Zobayan: Does this curriculum address serving people with mental and physical disabilities because this population is often misunderstood.
	Potter: ADMJ 101 includes disabled population Committee members made suggestions regarding how more DEI assignments might be incorporated such as articles and guest speakers.

	Chin: DEI topics in the course should be reflected in the course outline and should be explicit, methods of evaluation could reflect DEI content and you might want to consider having guest Speakers.
	Cortes: What do you mean by saying that your curriculum is based facts? Do you mean facts in terms of what has happened and what could have been done to avoid killing these victims?
	Cortes also suggested that Potter reach out to the FDRG group to see if the course descriptors have changed.
	Dudley may be assigned students to find peer review articles about policing and DEI.
