

Interested in Becoming a Health Professional?

UCLA MEDPEP WILL HELP YOU SUCCEED!

Médicos, Enfermeros, y Dentistas Para El Pueblo (MEDPEP) is a Medical Preparation and Education Pipeline program designed to support low-income Latino and underrepresented minority (URM) students through their community college experience and transition to 4-year universities and health professional programs. MEDPEP is administered by the Center for the Study of Latino Health and Culture (CESLAC) at the UCLA David Geffen School of Medicine, the leading research institute in California that provides reliable data on Latino health.

MEDPEP accomplishes its mission by providing:

- Academic workshops
- Community service and job shadowing opportunities
- Conference and research participation
- Parent/family support
- Leadership development
